AAUW State Conference, April 21-22, 2006 “Gateways”...Achieving Success in Education, Careers and Economic Security

The 2006 AAUW IA Annual Meeting and Conference will be held in Marshalltown on Friday evening, April 21st and Saturday April 22nd. The event has such richness and depth that you will want to bring several people from your branch and larger community to absorb it all! The program will appeal to people (not just AAUW members) who share our passion of equity, quality education and positive societal change. So, invite community leaders and friends that share your values and especially those with whom you network to actively improve your community.

For the first time in many years, our program will begin on Friday evening with a venue you won't want to miss! Our setting is the Fisher Community Center, one of the gems of Marshalltown. The 2006 “Iowa Leadership Roundtable” begins at 6:30 pm with a wine and cheese reception hosted by Marshalltown Chamber Ambassadors. Come early to visit the French Impressionist Gallery, enjoy fine music, and connect with women from across the state. Following dinner at 7:00 pm, all participants will join in a roundtable discussion led by Dr. Kathy Kremer, Assistant Professor of Sociology at Wartburg College. With years of expertise in community development, Dr. Kremer will model an asset-based planning process that leads to an effective, collaborative focus. Geared to leaders of a variety of organizations, this session will illustrate how to tap the vast research base and resources of AAUW. Participants will gain strategies for strengthening their organizational programming while benefiting their community as a whole.

A hearty breakfast on Saturday morning includes an egg casserole, muffins, fruit and beverages. The Annual business meeting is first on the agenda so that the remainder of the day will be of interest to the wider audience. We are honored to have Mary Ellen Smyth, immediate past president of the Educational Foundation, to speak on “Putting the Pieces Together” based on her experiences with successful action projects and effective partnerships.

The entire program is enriching with dynamic breakout sessions which address many facets of our mission. We want volunteers from branches to introduce presenters and summarize highlights of the sessions for other participants. There are breaks during the day to bid on Silent Auction items.

Other highlights include: Honoring 50 year members, the Distinguished Faculty of the Year Award and response, and Branch Recognition with a powerpoint presentation, 2006 Showcasing Branch Achievements. The day will culminate with the results of the Silent Auction, The Year in Review and handing off of the gavel to the incoming president, Dr. Janet Heinicke.

The conference will formally adjourn at 4:00 and the Marshalltown contingent will have a variety of enticing opportunities for those that want to indulge in some sightseeing and fun.

Welcome to Marshalltown!

Centrally-located and pleasantly-affordable, Marshalltown is a convenient site for statewide events. But it's also so much more!! Art and culture enthusiasts rave over the original French Impressionists paintings, Christian Peterson sculptures, and long-standing pottery collection at Fisher Community Center. Shoppers adore the personable and imaginative Main Street mix including antiques, fashion, a gallery, chocolate shop, an urban-style B & B, and gourmet dining. Whether you make it a day or weekend, plan time to discover Marshalltown treasures!

Keynote Address “Putting the Pieces Together”

Ms. Smyth emphasizes that to achieve any lasting results, many good minds are needed, and that includes not only our own members but individuals and entities from society at large. Putting the pieces together calls on the best from all of us, AAUW members and others, with goals that fit with our mission, if we are truly to make an impact on women's economic security and in ensuring education and equity for women and girls.

Mary Ellen Smyth

Mary Ellen Smyth has had a distinguished career as an educator, serving on the faculties of the University of Wyoming and the Pennsylvania State University as well as a teacher in secondary schools in Colorado, Wyoming and Illinois. She has also been a professional actress, host of a weekly television interview show, and chief administrator of a medical corporation. A thirty member active member of AAUW, Mary Ellen has just completed her second term as President of the Association AAUW Educational Foundation. Today, she is the owner of The Smyth Organization, a medical practice management services company with consulting services in communication and staff and leadership development for both health care professionals and organizations. Ms. Smyth is the keynote speaker for the Iowa Conference on April 22nd and will lead a workshop.

“A SENSE OF IOWA”

Our AAUW Annual Conference is coming up soon, and the EFP/LAF will again have a Silent Auction to benefit both areas. In the past members have enjoyed this added interest to look at in-between meetings. This year we would like to broaden our horizons and include single items, as well as assemblages in baskets. We would like for you to seek out local work by local artists, so that we really can have a Sense of Iowa! Potters, wood carvings, artists, authors, basket makers, to suggest a few. Make us aware of our artistic senses and heritage.

It is proposed that the minimum bid for each item be no less than $15.00. Since there may be items of greater value, the branch or individual who brought the item should be free to designate the value. For example, original artwork would be at the discretion of the individual artist.

The State Board is recommending that the proceeds from this project be shared between the EFP and LAF. For the EFP, the funds will go to the Betty Boulton/Edith Sackett Endowment, which is the only Iowa Endowment that is not completed. In this manner we will support worthy funds.

So! Start thinking! As a starter, I am bringing a dozen of the wonderful Easter Eggs they make in Amana! Make it fun and interesting and include some written informational material about the item you bring.

The EFP/LAF Committee will be there to register your items, arrange them for viewing and bidding, and supply bid slips. Winning bidders will be announced in the afternoon so that the items can be picked up by the lucky victors.

See you at convention! If you have not attended a State Meeting, make this your FIRST! You will be glad you did!

A Message from the President...

AAUW Blueprint to Impact Communities, Help Iowa Grow

AAUW members are committed to helping build vibrant communities by providing quality childcare, quality public education, educational equity, and welcoming practices to assimilate newcomers. The conference this spring will show you how a few AAUW members can accomplish significant goals when they launch an action plan that gets community-wide and state-wide projects started.

Sue Jorgensen

The 2006 Annual Conference is different from previous years because of our inclusive invitation to community leaders, friends and parents to attend the conference and become partners in projects that improve the quality of life for Iowans. The Leaders' Roundtable on Friday evening will begin dialogue about "hot topics" ~ what our communities need and what we can do about it.

Partnerships can increase our effectiveness immensely! Each branch president will receive a dozen attractive, glossy brochures to market the conference more widely. The purpose is that branches will reach out to the "movers and shakers" in the community and encourage them to come to the state conference. We need for them to be included in dialogue that leads to action projects that help Iowa thrive and grow. Our goal is that business owners, educators, administrators, executives, parents and AAUW members will attend. This is possible because of a generous grant from the Marshalltown Convention and Visitor Bureau.

When inviting nonmembers to attend ~ Share your enthusiasm for a terrific program with outstanding presenters!

Cordially,
 Sue Jorgensen

Florine Swanson My top ten resolutions for AAUW and You!

Regional Director Message

Resolutions are like a strategic plan. They can serve as the direction you hope to go in the coming year. So you're saying, where does AAUW fit in to this picture?

1. Attend the Upper Midwest Regional AAUW Conference in Grand Forks, ND on June 9-11. Take advantage of the opportunity to learn about programs that can impact your community, learn leadership skills that work in volunteer organizations as well as your career, hear outstanding speakers and have fun celebrating the 125th Anniversary of AAUW. Read more about the conference in the invitation from North Dakota. (Registration forms and program details will be posted on the Iowa web site.)
2. Sign up for the Iowa AAUW Annual Meeting at Marshalltown on April 21-22. Registration form included in this newsletter.
3. Say yes to one leadership role in your branch or state. It might be one day for a special project or it might be as an officer or committee member. As with anything we take on, the more we give, the more we get out of it. It's this time of year that nominating committees are seeking future leadership. If asked, know that you are needed.
4. Check out the AAUW web page regularly. Your Association is working hard at improved communications with all members. The Ed Eq Change is sent twice a month by e-mail to your state president. But you can read the information as well on the web page. This provides the very latest news at the Association level. And don't forget the Iowa webpage, too.
5. Read the latest issue of the Outlook. This professional journal which is part of your membership is filled with numerous outstanding articles. Often we are so busy when it arrives that it gets laid aside.
6. Select one of the books on the Adelante list. Winter is a great time to read when we aren't outdoors as often. I'm reading Nickel and Dimed this month.
7. Share your views on public policy with your Congressmen or your legislators. AAUW has one of the most respected group of lobbyist in Washington, DC on education and equity issues. (Our Lobby Corp is all volunteers!)
8. Become a donor to the Legal Advocacy Fund with a direct contribution or by donating an item or basket for the Silent Auction at the Iowa Annual Meeting and/or the Regional Conference.
9. Give a contribution to the One In A Million campaign at $120 to maintain the programs of excellence of our organization.
10. Ask someone to become a member of your branch or as a MAL. Or give a gift of membership to a recent college graduate.

You might want to create your own list of AAUW resolutions for the coming year. Give it a try! Once you get started you'll be amazed at how many resolutions you can make. Make it a great year as an AAUW member!

Breakout Sessions:

“Successful Branches Are Continuously Evolving!”

Ms. Smyth will focus on why development is important to branches, to the state, and to our parent organization, including the Educational Foundation and the Legal Advocacy Fund. She will define the links between development and fundraising, suggest techniques and strategies including identifying and cultivating prospects, successful branch activities and/or searching for new ideas. She says: “Women and philanthropy is an idea whose time has come!” This will definitely be a time to share!

“Yes, You Can!—Improving Immigrants Lives, Improving Communities with Changing Populations”

This session will tell about what AAUW-IA can do to encourage the removal of educational barriers for the new immigrants to Iowa and introduce a project that is being piloted in Marshalltown. The project has twin goals to encourage young Hispanic females to pursue education beyond high school and the empowerment of young adult Latinas in leadership roles. The project involves changing family perceptions to value education as a means for economic security and to adopt new thinking about potential roles for Hispanic females in the workforce. AAUW-IA would like to pursue an action grant to replicate this project in several branches across the state. Come to hear how your branch can be involved!

“Advocating For The Arts Through Story Telling”

For this presentation, Ms. Korte, a master storyteller, will use accent, costume, paper cutting, paper folding, rhyme, music and props. Her stories teach and entertain, but also depict societies, near and far and how they think of their world as well as ours. Audience participation is encouraged!

“Health Disparities in Iowa: The Impact on Women”

This workshop will focus on women’s health issues in Iowa; the connection between global and local women’s health concerns; immigrant and refugee health issues and current projects addressing the needs. Ms. Miller brings a wealth of insight because of her roots in Iowa and extensive travel and mission trips abroad.

“Women and Work in Iowa’s Economy”

Participants in this workshop session will review and discuss key economic policy trends in Iowa and nationally and their impact on women, including access to education, wage equity in the workplace, unpaid labor of women and social security as it affects womens’ economic security.

Challenges To Quality In Iowa’s Education Pre-School, K-12

Mr. Hoover will address the status of education in Iowa and issues including early childhood education, achievement issues, Title IX, local control vs. state control and the effect of vouchers on public education. He works with the state legislature to keep them apprised of needs and issues facing educators.

AAUW: A Key Player in Community Conversations about Quality Child Care

by Jeanne Warning

In fall 2005, over 300 Iowans in 12 community forums deliberated the public issue of improving the quality of child care. The forums were jointly sponsored by Iowa State University Extension, the Iowa Association of Family and Consumer Sciences, and the American Association of University Women. Three policy approaches for helping communities enhance the quality of child care were discussed: increasing government regulation; enhancing parent education; and facilitating parental care. Forums were held in Council Bluffs, Des Moines, Davenport, Dubuque and in eight rural communities which included: Algona, Burlington, Decorah, Eldora, Keokuk, Keosauqua, Ottumwa, and Tipton. Participants reflected a broad range of the population, including parents, grandparents, child care providers and professionals, school personnel, community and civic leaders, and legislators. However, child care advocates were in the majority.

Common Themes

Several common themes surfaced in the forums:

- the necessity of adequate funding to ensure quality care, including the need for subsidies to assist low-income families.
- the need to educate parents and the public about what to look for in quality care.
- the need for increased training for child care providers.
- the need for increased regulation that is consistent, enforceable and yet flexible to allow families choices to meet their needs.
- a need for societal change in our values regarding the importance of children and the care they deserve.

You can find the summary report of the findings from the 12 forums at the following website: https://www.extension.iastate.edu/childcare/quality/conversation/short_report.pdf

Value of Forums

One third of the forum participants who responded to the post evaluation questionnaire following each forum reported they were thinking differently about the quality child care issue after participating in the community conversation, and 60% indicated they discussed aspects of the issue that they had not discussed before. Certainly just having the conversation was of benefit to individuals. Research about National Issues Forums – NIF-style forums indicates that individuals, while they may not change their minds, do feel they better understand the complexity of the issue and are open to listening to others' perspectives. Participants' comments on the questionnaire reflect this. In order for change however, individuals need to act!

There are certainly lots of possibilities for follow up action beyond these community forums. The forums are one step in a continuing conversation. For example, AAUW in one community is considering a letter writing campaign to legislators advocating for adequate and equitable funding for quality early childhood education programs.

Taking Action will be covered in the next issue of the initiative.

Call for Resolutions

Seven Schools Are Members of College / University Partners Program

by Melanie Guentzel

Over 550 institutions belong to the AAUW College/University Partner Program. Seven of those schools are in Iowa: Coe College, Eastern Iowa Community College District, Morningside College, Northwestern College, Simpson College, University of Northern Iowa, and Wartburg College. Institutional membership in AAUW helps further our mission of equity for women and girls as well as offering educational and growth opportunities for faculty, staff, and students. Some of this support includes: offering an American Fellowship for women doctoral candidates, a University Scholar in Residence Award for research on gender equity, and hosting an annual National Conference for Women College Student Leaders.

We recently sent branches information about supporting a woman student to attend the leadership conference.

AAUW would like to increase institutional membership. As with all membership initiatives, personal contact is important. To that end, the College/University Liaison Team is supplying branch Presidents with a list of the colleges and contacts near their community and templates of letters to customize and send to institutions encouraging institutional membership. For more information go to: <http://www.aauw.org/join/value/colleges.cfm>.
